

Criteria for the appointment of tribunal members

Background

The Medical Practitioners Tribunal Service (MPTS) is the statutory committee of The General Medical Council (GMC) responsible for providing a hearings service that is efficient, effective and clearly separate from the investigatory role of the Fitness to Practise Directorate.

The GMC (Constitution of Panels, Tribunals and Investigation Committee) Rules [2015] require the setting and publication of the criteria which a person must satisfy (whether in relation to qualifications, experience, competencies or other matters) in order to be eligible for selection to serve as tribunal member.

This document constitutes the publication of those criteria.

Tribunal members

The MPTS policy is that tribunal members should have undergone a process of assessment against specified criteria and training to ensure that they are suitable to carry out the role of tribunal member.

Medical tribunal members must be registered with the GMC and hold a licence to practise and have a reasonable expectation of remaining in this position for at least five years.

Lay tribunal members are interpreted by the GMC (Constitution of Panels, Tribunals and Investigation Committee) Rules [2015] as individuals who are not, and never have been, registered medical practitioners or holders of a qualification registrable under the Medical Act 1983.

Tribunal members must complete annual MPTS training in order to carry out their role.

Tribunal Members must be over the age of 18 at the time of appointment. There is no maximum age for appointment.

No individual may be an MPTS tribunal member where this is not compatible with paragraph 4 of The GMC (Constitution of Panels, Tribunals and Investigation Committee) Rules Order of Council 2015. Any appointment to one position would require resignation from the other.*

Competencies

Tribunal members must exercise their responsibilities in reaching decisions as individuals, not as representatives of other organisations.

Tribunal members must be able to make thoughtful and unbiased decisions in the context of the relevant jurisdiction, which is both to protect patients and to act in the public interest, which, in addition to the protection of patients, includes the maintenance of public confidence in the profession and declaring and upholding proper standards of conduct and behaviour.

Tribunal members must be able to demonstrate the following competencies:

Intellectual and analytical ability

Good analytical skills; able to identify key issues clearly, assimilate information quickly and accurately, manage complex material with ease and argue a coherent position.

Decision making and sound judgment

Good decision-making skills; uses information in a fair, accurate and balanced way to arrive at well judged, reasoned and sustainable decisions.

Able to make important and difficult decisions on highly sensitive matters within tight timeframes.

* Any individual to hold an appointment as a tribunal member cannot carry out any role within the GMC's investigatory part of the process or on the registration panels.

Working with others

Good interpersonal skills; ensure their own views are heard, constructively challenge the opinions of others, and accept collective responsibility.

A willingness to accept feedback from others and to learn from the experience of others.

Communication skills, integrity and sound temperament

Excellent communication skills, both oral and written, and able to express themselves clearly and succinctly.

Demonstrable integrity, including generating the trust, confidence and respect of others and dealing impartially with all matters raised during tribunal hearings.

Those appointed must also be committed to follow the Principles of Public Life as drawn up by the Committee on Standards in Public Life*.

Confidentiality, fairness, equality and diversity

A clear understanding of confidentiality in relation both to evidence and to the tribunal's deliberations and be committed to it. Those appointed must adhere to the GMC's information security and data protection policies.

Must be open-minded and objective and have the ability to recognise conflicts or potential conflicts of interest and declare them. Those appointed must also have the ability to apply rules and standards, make judgments free from bias and deal impartially with all matters raised during tribunal hearings.

Must ensure that their decision-making and behaviour is fair and non-discriminatory at all times. Those appointed must recognise and respect the differences of the diverse groups of people with whom they will come into contact. They should also be prepared to challenge discriminatory or inappropriate behaviour and recognise any personal emotions or prejudices that may influence their judgment in order to be able to put these aside.

Knowledge of MPTS/GMC policies and procedures

Tribunal members must show commitment to and understanding of the GMC and MPTS policies and procedures and the legal framework within which tribunals work. Tribunal members should be well informed and keeps up to date on current issues.

IT literacy

Tribunal members must have internet access and the ability to take part in virtual hearings and training, communicate by email, sending and receiving communications with all types of attachments, able to access and read hearing documentation on-line, work with on-line forms, questionnaires and other documents. They must also have an effective personal email address.

Equal Opportunities

MPTS values equality and diversity and is committed to ensuring that our procedures are fair, transparent and free from unlawful discrimination. Tribunal members are appointed from all suitably qualified applicants. We have a legal obligation to promote and advance quality of opportunity, and everyone who acts for the MPTS or GMC in any capacity is expected to adhere to the spirit and letter of the legislation.
