Changes to the Warnings guidance

Dear all,

The Warnings guidance has recently been updated to ensure consistency with other guidance. The key changes are:

- Paragraph 23 has been amended to remove assault in a non- professional context as an example of a type of case that it is normally appropriate to conclude with a warning;
- Clarification that disorderly behaviour (without violence) and minor criminal damage (as opposed to criminal damage more generally) are examples of cautions or convictions that may result in a warning.

If you have any queries about the amendments to the guidance, please contact us.

Kind regards
